THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION
FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SLAVIC STUDIES

Founded in 1948 under New York Membership Corporation Law for the purpose of publishing the American Slavic and East European Review, the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies was expanded in 1960 into a membership organization. It is governed by a board of Directors elected by the membership of the Association and affiliated national professional associations. The Board elects the officers of the Association. To serve its members and to answer inquiries concerning activities in the field, the Association maintains an AAASS Central Office at The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio. The Association, a nonprofit, non political, professional organization, seeks to advance scholarly study, publication, and teaching relating to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

The principal publication of the Association, the Slavic Review: American Quarterly of Soviet and East European Studies (formerly the American Slavic and East European Review), carries scholarly articles and book reviews dealing with all parts of the Soviet and east European areas and representing the various academic disciplines of the social sciences and humanities. It encourages discussion of significant problems that cut across disciplinary and regional lines.

The Newsletter, published quarterly by the Central Office, serves as an important news media to the Association's 2,400 members by keeping them informed of all important occurrences in the field of Slavic studies. The Newsletter disseminates information on professional conferences, institutional developments, and grants and fellowships offered and awarded.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE WORLD'S PERIODICAL LITERATURE

17:1864. Martin, André. LA "REVOLUTION DE DECEMBRE" EN POLOGNE [The "December Revolution" in Poland]. Etudes 1971 334(3): 323-348. Discusses the significance of the "Polish December" of 1970 for the future of the Soviet bloc. This was the first time in 50 years that the working class of a Communist country revolted, obtained its goals, and obliged a dictator literally to disappear. An attempt is made to trace the possible repercussions this revolt may elicit, particularly in relation to the development of Soviet and Chinese policy. The role in this crisis of leaders Mieczysław Moczar and Edward Gierek is described. Finally, the nature of Poland's economic subjection to Soviet industrial domination is studied. A short chronology of Poland's week of crisis is appended to the text. Documented; 33 notes. S. J. Bartlett

WORLD HISTORY: Historical Abstracts is the only reference work of its type in history and the social sciences. It surveys more than 2,200 periodicals published in 30 languages covering world history from 1775 to the present (except the United States and Canada).

SLAVIC STUDIES: Beginning with Volume 17 (1971) the chronological scope of Historical Abstracts was extended from 1775-1945 to 1775 to the present. Abstracts of interest to historians, scholars, and researchers concerned with Slavic Studies has also been expanded: 1,000 abstracts drawn from 126 journals, annually.
