2010 DISTINGUISHED CONTRIBUTIONS TO SLAVIC, EAST EUROPEAN, AND EURASIAN STUDIES AWARD

WINNER: STANISŁAW BARAŃCZAK

The 2010 Distinguished Contributions to Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies Award, which honors senior scholars who have helped build and develop the field through scholarship, teaching, and service to the profession, is presented to Stanisław Barańczak, scholar, poet, translator, critic, editor and teacher in the field of Polish and East European literatures and political cultures. He is an outstanding member of the Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies community.

Stanisław Barańczak is the Alfred Jurzykowski Professor of Polish Literature emeritus at Harvard University. He was educated in Polish literature at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań, Poland where he also began his academic career. During his first year of college he published literary criticism and poems. Besides his academic work, he participated in the opposition movement, taking part in uncensored publications and anti-government activities. In 1981, he began teaching at Harvard. Brilliant, hard-working and extraordinarily productive, Barańczak has authored, translated and edited more than one hundred books. His main scholarly works pertain to contemporary Polish and East European literature. His A Fugitive from Utopia (Harvard, 1987) remains the single most important English-language study of the poet Zbigniew Herbert to date. Breathing Under Water and Other Eastern European Essays (Harvard, 1990) received the AATSEEL Prize for outstanding scholarship in 1991. He has translated almost all of Shakespeare's plays into Polish, offering to the Polish public lively, contemporary renditions that have been adopted in most theatre performances. His translations (with commentaries) of English-language poetry into Polish, starting with John Donne and ending with contemporary poets, offer to Polish readers a new portal into Anglo-American culture. Equally important are his translations of Polish poetry into English, especially his co-translation with Seamus Heaney of the foremost Renaissance poet Jan Kochanowski, and with Clare Cavanagh of the Nobel Prize winner Wisława Szymborska. His own poetry has been recognized with the highest Polish literary award (Nike) and is also available in English. Finally, he is the author of several volumes of light and nonsensical verse as well as a translator of the classics of that genre.

His contributions to the profession are also remarkable. He propagated Polish and East European literatures through his constant presence in mainstream publications: he was a regular reviewer for The New Republic and his criticism has also appeared regularly in The New York Review of Books, The New York Times Book Review, Partisan Review, Salmagundi, and other noted periodicals. His prize-winning translations have appeared with Harcourt and Farrar, Straus & Giroux, and in innumerable periodicals. His translation (with Clare Cavanagh) of Wisława Szymborska's View with a Grain of Sand (1995) received both the Pen/Book-of-the-Month Club Prize and the AATSEEL prize for translation from a Slavic language. The students he inspired to become Slavic comparativists with an active interest in Polish literature are teaching at Duke, Oxford, Indiana, Northwestern universities and the University of Michigan. For many years he also served as editor of the quarterly Polish Review.

Over the past three decades, Professor Stanisław Barańczak has built a great and enduring legacy for the fields of Slavic and Polish studies.

THE WAYNE S. VUCINICH BOOK PRIZE

The Wayne S. Vucinich Book Prize sponsored by the Association for Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies (ASEEES) and the Stanford University Center for Russian and East European Studies, is awarded annually for the most important contribution to Russian, Eurasian, and East European studies in any discipline of the humanities or social sciences published in English in the United States in the previous calendar year.

Winner: Miriam Dobson

Title: Khrushchev's Cold Summer: Gulag Returnees, Crime, and the Fate of Reform after Stalin (Cornell University Press)

Based on new archival research that incorporates unusual materials such as prisoners' songs, tattoos, and anti-Soviet leaflets penned by gulag returnees, this lively and insightful history of crime and punishment challenges several truisms about Khrushchev's "thaw" in the early 1960s. Dobson traces the wax and wane of the gulag population, the expansion of the death penalty, and the shifts in other criminal justice policies during Khrushchev's regime, showing that at the height of de-Stalinization, a certain form of re-Stalinization was taking place. Using letters to the Soviet press, party officials' reports, and petitions written by gulag inmates and returnees, she also proves that the Soviet public, having learned the "enemies of the people" rhetoric, could not let it go easily. By demonstrating what a complex and potentially destabilizing force the returning gulag prisoners could be, and documenting the repressive steps taken by the regime in response, Dobson alters our views of the Khrushchev period. A model of deep research, that presents a clear and compelling argument, this book is a pleasure to read.

THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA BOOK PRIZE IN LITERARY AND CULTURAL STUDIES

The University of Southern California Book Prize in Literary and Cultural Studies, established in 2009, and sponsored by the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures at the University of Southern California, is awarded annually for an outstanding monograph published on Russia, Eastern Europe or Eurasia in the fields of literary and cultural studies in the previous calendar year.

Winner: Claudia R. Jensen

Title: Musical Cultures in Seventeenth-Century Russia (Indiana University Press)

The College of Letter, Arts & Sciences at the University of Southern California is pleased to award the USC Book Prize to Claudia R. Jensen for Musical Cultures in Seventeenth-Century Russia, published by Indiana University Press. Jensen uses a seemingly small topic - the music and musical practices of the upper echelons of the ruling class - to elucidate what she calls "a multiplicity of worlds of Muscovite music making." With music as a focal point, Jensen investigates social and cultural practices in the Muscovite court, in taverns, at weddings, and in other settings. Her research both reveals new sources and casts a new light on familiar historical documents. Her capacious and scrupulous research, and her ability to put her work into a context that draws in even those who are not specialists in her area, make Musical Cultures in Seventeenth-Century a truly outstanding contribution to the field.

THE REGINALD ZELNIK BOOK PRIZE IN HISTORY

The Reginald Zelnik Book Prize in History, established in 2009 and sponsored by the Institute of Slavic, East European, and Eurasian Studies at the University of California, Berkeley, is awarded annually for an outstanding monograph published on Russia, Eastern Europe or Eurasia in the field of history in the previous calendar year.

Winner: Robert Edelman

Title: Spartak Moscow: A History of the People's Team in the Workers' State
(Cornell University Press)

In a highly competitive field, Spartak Moscow stood out as much more than just the history of a single Russian sports team. It offers its readers a unique vision of Russia's entire 20th century, as told through the remarkably revealing prism of the Spartak experience. The core of the book, on the years from 1935 to 1964, is packed with insights not only into sport and popular culture, but Soviet society and politics. If these insights are not explicitly revisionist, they still compel a more complex and subtle understanding of these tumultuous years. Sport history is a growing field, both in its own right and as part of the greater emphasis historians now place on culture, broadly (or anthropologically) defined. With respect to Russia, Edelman has been a pioneer in the field and he's done a remarkable job of integrating the institutional history of the game, urban social history, and the history of masculinity with the unique and critical political and social issues posed by the Soviet experience.

Spartak Moscow is a lively and compelling read. Sports fans will enjoy Edelman's riveting accounts of key matches and his portraits of remarkable individuals, while scholars, students, and general readers will also find an engaging but serious commentary and interpretation of important issues, based on painstaking and thorough research.

Honorable Mention:

Author: Howard Louthan

Title: Converting Bohemia: Force and Persuasion in the Catholic Reformation
(Cambridge University Press)

Howard Louthan's Converting Bohemia counters the simplicities of nationalist and confessional historiography. Louthan seeks to explain why, although the Czech national myth is founded in the country's Hussite legacy, most Czechs have been Catholic since the 17th century. While not ignoring the use of terror and violence in the Habsburg re-Catholicization of the Bohemian lands, Louthan skillfully shows how the Counter-Reformation succeeded by combining force with persuasion. Although this is a work aimed at specialists, it is remarkably accessible to those with relatively little knowledge of the period. Converting Bohemia is a model of revisionist history. Its arguments are all the more persuasive because Louthan judiciously avoids the temptation to oversell them. In short, this is a remarkable work of scholarship.

Author: Christine Ruane

Title: The Empire's New Clothes: A History of the Russian Fashion Industry, 1700-1917 (Yale University Press)

Christine Ruane's study of the Russian fashion industry is a stunning synthesis of social and cultural history. Once Peter the Great decreed that Russian nobles should dress in Western styles, Russia was compelled to create its own fashion industry. Ruane tells the story of this industry from its origins to its collapse in 1917, from the viewpoints of its cultural leaders, its skilled (and also unskilled) workers, and its consumers. Master tailors and suffering apprentices share the pages with society ladies, both noble and bourgeois, Slavophile intellectuals, and the tsarist state, each of which sought -- with questionable success -- to reshape Russian culture through fashion. The story is also well-illustrated with a large variety of striking visual images, beautifully presented in "coffee table" style, which deeply enrich a compelling and well-presented story.

MARSHALL SHULMAN PRIZE

The Marshall Shulman Prize, sponsored by the Harriman Institute of Columbia University, is awarded annually for an outstanding monograph dealing with the international relations, foreign policy, or foreign-policy decision-making of any of the states of the former Soviet Union or Eastern Europe. The prize is dedicated to the encouragement of high quality studies of the international behavior of the countries of the former Communist Bloc.

Winner: Lorenz Lüthi

Title: The Sino-Soviet Split: Cold War in the Communist World (Princeton University Press)

Lorenz Lüthi's The Sino-Soviet Split: Cold War in the Communist World is likely to become the last best word on the subject. In his nonpareil use of multiple archival sources, many beyond the more obvious Soviet and Chinese ones, Lüthi has developed a far more comprehensive account of the origins and progress of the Sino-Soviet split than any scholar to date. This volume will be a reference work for others for some years to come.

Winner: Mary Elise Sarotte

Title: 1989 The Struggle to Create Post-Cold War Europe (Princeton University Press)

Mary Elise Sarotte's book, 1989: The Struggle to Create Post-Cold War Europe, tells the fascinating story of the beginning of the end of the Cold War: the collapse of the Berlin Wall and East Germany's unification with West Germany a year later. Despite the fact that her readers all know how the story ends, the book unfolds like a page-turner, rather than an historical chronology. Sarotte sketches the primary Soviet, German, European, and US characters with the depth they deserve, and explains in detail the consequences of their many meetings. She reveals how the reunification of Germany was hardly pre-ordained and also how Moscow's consent sowed the seeds of future distrust between the US and Russia.

Honorable Mention:

Author: Keith A. Darden

Title: Economic Liberalism and its Rivals: The Formation of International Institutions Among the Post-Soviet States (Cambridge University Press)

THE ED A. HEWETT PRIZE

The Ed A. Hewett Prize, sponsored by the National Council for Eurasian and East European Research (NCEEER), is awarded annually for an outstanding publication on the political economy of the centrally planned economies of the former Soviet Union and East Central Europe and their transitional successors.

Winner: Keith A. Darden

Title: Economic Liberalism and its Rivals: The Formation of International Institutions Among the Post-Soviet States (Cambridge University Press)

Darden sets out to explain the policy choices that the post-Soviet states made in the international economic arena in the 1990s. He identifies three mutually exclusive paths that led respectively to WTO membership, reintegration into the CIS region, and unilateralism or autarky. The book provides a comprehensive narrative of these policy choices for each country, based on official documentation and statistics, memoirs, and more than two hundred first-hand interviews with officials. This alone is a major contribution.

At the book's core is a substantial theoretical innovation. How important are ideas and ideologies in international policy choices? Social scientists have debated the importance of ideas relative to the influence of economic structures and interests, and national identities and feelings. Darden rejects an either/or approach. Instead, he argues that national elites cannot establish their identities or identify their material interests, except through the medium of "causal ideas" or models of the world that link alternative policies causally with possible social and economic outcomes.

Because the state of the world is intrinsically uncertain, Darden argues, our knowledge of past and present causation is always imperfect. As a result, causal ideas are not systematically selected for validity. Instead they are selected by historical factors, including sometimes by accident. In his book, Darden goes on to identify the national policy making circles in each country. He develops usable measures of the variation in their causal ideas. He successfully tests the contingent selection of ideas and their systematic influence on their international policy choices.

Economic Liberalism and its Rivals is an excellent and incisively written contribution to our subject. The panel was hugely impressed by the broad scope of its topic and the high quality of the investigation, which has clear significance for history and social science beyond the limits of our region.

Honorable Mention:

Author: Sean McMeekin

Title: History's Greatest Heist: The Looting of Russia by the Bolsheviks (Yale University Press)

The economic history of Russia's revolution and civil war tends to take for granted the Bolshevik nationalization of the "commanding heights" of industry and banking. Less attention has been paid to the expropriation of Russia's upper and middle classes. Sean McMeekin fills this gap with a powerful narrative of bank robbery and burglary, and an account of the economic and social consequences of these actions. History's Greatest Heist uncovers a wealth of previously unknown information on how the Bolsheviks financed their operations. This well-researched book provides an object lesson in the ruination of economic and social values that results from confiscation: the loss to Russian society was far greater than the gain to the Bolsheviks.

Author: Grigore Pop-Eleches

Title: From Economic Crisis to Reform: IMF Programs in Latin America and Eastern Europe (Princeton University Press)

From Economic Crisis to Reform is a fascinating contribution to the political economy of crisis adjustment in emerging economies. It compares the impact and implementation of IMF crisis adjustment programs in Latin America in the Cold War and Eastern Europe after the fall of the Berlin Wall. Grigor Pop-Eleches has combined theory with econometrics and case studies to produce a work of unusual breadth and depth. Among the findings are that economic crisis tended to sharpen domestic partisanship in Latin America in the Cold War, while softening it in Eastern Europe in the post-Soviet transition; debtor interests were less important in East European crisis adjustment than they were previously in Latin America. A substantive work of political economy, From Economic Crisis to Reform deftly utilizes the contrasting experiences of Latin America and Eastern Europe to illuminate broader lessons of IMF engagement applicable to all regions.

DAVIS CENTER BOOK PRIZE IN POLITICAL AND SOCIAL STUDIES

The Davis Center Book Prize in Political and Social Studies, established in 2008, and sponsored by the Kathryn W. and Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Russian and Eurasian Studies at Harvard University, is awarded annually for an outstanding monograph published on Russia, Eurasia, or Eastern Europe in anthropology, political science, sociology, or geography in the previous calendar year.

Winner: Olga Shevchenko

Title: Crisis and the Everyday in Post-Socialist Moscow (Indiana University Press)

Olga Shevchenko's study of contemporary life in Moscow provides an excellent balance of rich ethnographic research, an insightful theoretical framework, and engaging writing. She integrates many different aspects of urban life during this period, and offers the kind of ethnographic breadth and depth that is difficult to achieve in urban ethnographies. Her identification of "total crisis" as the defining feature of post-socialist life structures a fascinating analysis of the seemingly contradictory narratives and choices of the people she portrays through lively descriptions and skillful incorporation of different modes of research. Shevchenko invites the reader into everyday life in Moscow and offers insights into how people navigate the complicated world in which extended crisis becomes lived reality.

Honorable Mention:Author: Bruce Grant

Title: The Captive and the Gift: Cultural Histories of Sovereignty in Russia and the Caucasus (Cornell University Press)

Bruce Grant crafts a smart and unique take on the complex and acrimonious relationship between Russia and the Caucasus. It is an issue of historic and contemporary importance, which Grant illuminates in this highly original case study, drawn from multi-media and interview sources and embedded in a rich intellectual discussion. It is a marvelously written and lyrical book.

Author: Douglas Rogers

Title: The Old Faith and the Russian Land: A Historical Ethnography of Ethics in the Urals (Cornell University Press)

Rogers shows that there is still considerable value in a village ethnography. The focus on ethical systems and their effects on the management of human capital is a valuable addition to the anthropology of post-socialism. It is especially noteworthy for the attention it brings to communities like Sepych, whose experiences and internal logic often contrast sharply with the visions and goals of policy-makers. The study is enriched by combining a historical approach with contemporary ethnographic research.

THE BARBARA JELAVICH BOOK PRIZE

The Barbara Jelavich Book Prize, established in 1995 and sponsored by Charles Jelavich, is awarded annually for a distinguished monograph published on any aspect of Southeast European or Habsburg studies since 1600, or 19th- and 20th-century Ottoman or Russian diplomatic history.

Winner: Holly Case

Title: Between States: The Transylvanian Question and the European Idea during World War II (Stanford University Press)

Holly Case's book is an insightful reconsideration of one of Europe's most stubborn and most historiographically productive "questions." The Transylvanian question began in the 19th century and is still alive. Through wide-ranging, imaginative research and a conceptually original approach, Between States reframes our understanding of national questions, the European idea, and the course of World War II; it challenges assumptions about the abilities of small states to have major impacts on the Great Powers.

The book stands out as a new type of history: It is systematically transnational and trans-genre. Writing from neither Romanian nor Hungarian perspective, Case succeeds in depicting the strict and self-consciously constructed reciprocity between the two sides in this protracted stand-off. But the book is as much about Transylvania as it is about Europe. Case explains how Hungarian and Romanian intellectuals, patriots, and politicians used the ground of the Transylvanian question to cast the relationship between their nation and "Europe"—a concept associated with the musculature of any particular moment's Great Powers. She also demonstrates the similarity between appeals made to Europe's Western powers, to the Axis, to Stalin, and to the European Union. Case's focus on the connection between territorial claims and the treatment of minorities—including the singularly embattled Jews in World War II—is novel. Her argument, that the small powers of East Central Europe were carrying out a "war within a war" during Hitler's attack on the Soviet Union, redraws the outlines of the war. Romania & Hungary, Case shows, were using Hitler's campaign to achieve their own territorial objectives, and, unsure of its outcome, prepared the same dossier of claims, proofs and grievances for both potential victors.

Between States moves among diplomatic, military, legal, social, and cultural levels. Case's research deals with every locus of the Transylvanian question from international treaties and opportunistic alliances to radio broadcasts and drinking taverns; from atlases and censuses to court records, board games and postage stamps; she shows how territorial claims were made by local and national authorities, by ordinary people, by opposition parties and by ruling dictators in all these many venues. Using a variety of sources in many languages, Holly Case deconstructs the social and political worlds and propaganda strategies of Romanians and Hungarians over more than a century. Her book provides a new and ambitious model of historical scholarship.

ASEEES/ORBIS BOOKS PRIZE FOR POLISH STUDIES

The ASEEES/Orbis Books Prize for Polish Studies, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Kulczycki, owners of the Orbis Books Ltd. of London, England, is awarded annually for the best book in any discipline, on any aspect of Polish affairs.

Winner: Clare Cavanagh

Title: Lyric Poetry and Modern Politics: Russia, Poland, and the West
(Yale University Press)

This is an outstanding scholarly work with a broad critical agenda. An overview of modern East European poetry, specifically Russian and Polish, it is also a comparative study of modern poetry on both the Eastern and Western side of the great political divide, known as “the iron curtain,” as well as a polemic with Western postmodern philosophical theories from French structuralism and deconstructivism to American cultural criticism and New Historicism. Cavanagh manages to do justice to all three endeavors, but it is the polemical aspect of her study that is of particular interest. The book provides a new perspective on recent critical discussions of the lyric as politically and socially irrelevant. It offers a welcome “Slavic corrective” to the narrow and myopic approach to the problem by American critics. Cavanagh demonstrates how the practice of personal lyric in totalitarian states such as Poland and Russia, far from being escapist, was a bold political statement and a costly act. She shows how “intensely private” poems were often an expression of values shared by the collectivity, thus performing “a public service.” In the context of programmatic collectivism, the personal lyric reverberates with a special singularity, and it was not the odes to Stalin but love poems that carried political weight and sent their authors to gulags or reduced them to silence. By including in her narrative the stories of often tragic fates of poets, Cavanagh makes her critical argument even more poignant. Cavanagh’s selection of poets is judicious. Whitman, Yeats, Mayakovski, Mandelstam, Akhmatova, Brodsky, Milosz, Herbert, Szymborska, Zagajewski—these are the names that define the 20th-century lyric while they represent an array of different poetic schools, styles, and philosophies. Lyric Poetry and Modern Politics is a master work that will richly reward readers from all disciplines.

Winner: Neal Pease

Title: Rome’s Most Faithful Daughter: The Catholic Church and Independent Poland, 1914-1939 (Ohio University and Swallow Press)

Neal Pease has written one of the best works on interwar Poland in several decades, in any language, as well as the most serious and thorough work on the Catholic Church in modern Poland. Rome’s Most Faithful Daughter tackles one of the most vexing questions of modern Polish history, the relationship between Catholicism and Polish politics. Pease places the triangular relationships among the Church hierarchy in Poland, the government of the fledgling Polish state and the Vatican within an international context and against the background of European politics in the 1920s and 1930s. The presentation of the interwar Church caught between traditional Catholicism and its traditional role as the guardian of Polish national identity on the one hand, and the modern secular culture on the other hand, is illuminating as well as subtle and nuanced. Avoiding sweeping generalizations about Polish Catholicism and Polish politics, Pease succeeds in maintaining a balance along some of the most treacherous canyons of Polish studies. When discussing the anti-Semitism of the Catholic Church in Poland, for example, Pease exposes the frequent duplicity of the Polish episcopate, and also places it in a broad European context, especially in comparison with Nazi racist attitudes in neighboring Germany. He is thus able to indicate how the Church's uneasy relationship with Poland's sizeable Jewish community would lay the groundwork for Poles' destructive ambivalence during the Holocaust and afterward. Rome's Most Faithful Daughter is written with verve and wit, and is based upon thorough archival research. Pease displays a gift for succinct presentation of an era, an event, or a personage, capturing salient characteristics without ignoring its complexities. He captures the Polish sense of mission; the needs and desires of those difficult decades; and most importantly, a sense of what all this has to do with Poland's (and Polish citizens') terrible fate after 1939. It will become essential reading for historians of Poland and of the Church in interwar Europe.

THE W. BRUCE LINCOLN BOOK PRIZE

The W. Bruce Lincoln Book Prize, sponsored by Mary Lincoln, is awarded biennially (in even numbered years) for an author's first published monograph or scholarly synthesis that is of exceptional merit and lasting significance for the understanding of Russia's past. The prize was established in 2004 in memory of W. Bruce Lincoln, a Russian historian and a widely-read author.

Winner: Rebecca Manley

Title: To the Tashkent Station: Evacuation and Survival in the Soviet Union at War
(Cornell University Press, 2009)

Movingly written and exhaustively researched, Rebecca Manley's To the Tashkent Station portrays a legendary but poorly understood aspect of the Soviet war experience: the massive evacuation of more than sixteen million Soviet citizens from the combat zones deep into the Soviet interior, and their eventual return. Situating the story in the Stalinist context of mass mobilization and police controls, Manley deftly weaves a narrative that leads the reader from the offices of institutional policy makers to the inner worlds of Soviet men and women from all walks of life who bore the devastating impact of mobilization, evacuation, and return. A stimulating analysis of the workings of the Soviet state during the Second World War, as well as its cultural and moral order, Manley's book moves from political to social to experiential themes with ease, and sustains its analysis with unflinching rigor. The result is a compelling, deeply informative, and synthetic study—a model historical work.

THE ROBERT C. TUCKER/STEPHEN F. COHEN PRIZE

The Robert C. Tucker/Stephen F. Cohen Prize, sponsored by the JKW Foundation, is awarded annually (if there is a distinguished submission) for an outstanding English-language doctoral dissertation defended at an American or Canadian university in the tradition of historical political science and political history of Russia or the Soviet Union as practiced by Robert C. Tucker and Stephen F. Cohen.

Winner: Oscar Sanchez-Sibony

Title: "Red Globalization: The Political Economy of Soviet Foreign Relations in the 1950s and 60s," University of Chicago Ph.D.

Oscar Sanchez-Sibony's dissertation has a persuasively argued original thesis about the Soviet Union in the era of the Cold War that breaks new ground in several respects. It starts by asking a very basic but somehow generally overlooked question about the Soviet Union's role in international affairs, namely why its imprint on the world economy was so small despite its superpower status. Departing from the bi-polar paradigm that has dominated the historical literature on the Cold War, it creatively employs the framework and insights offered by International Political Economy (IPE) to advance three key arguments:

- Soviet trade and aid policies were driven for the most part by pragmatic considerations that responded to opportunities as they presented themselves within the prevailing market-dominated system of global economic exchanges. Soviet trade policy under Stalin was autarchic by accident rather than intent, and after Stalin's death, Soviet authorities had no intention of undermining the American-led post-war system of international exchanges on which they were increasingly dependent and from which they were convinced the country benefited.

- After some initial expectations that it could hold its own in exchanges of industrial goods with western developed economies, the USSR reverted to exchanges more reflective of a developing country, supplying raw materials in exchange for technical goods. From the standpoint of the recently decolonized and developing countries of the South, the USSR represented a useful alternative to acquiescing in the US-dominated liberal trade order.

- As in so many other respects, the actual day-to-day handling of foreign trade was prone to all manner of inefficiencies, bureaucratic games, and divergence from central dictates, the result of which was very little if any synergies between trading partners.

These arguments are advanced on the basis of archival materials from central state and party organizations that initiated and oversaw foreign trade, but also the extensive but comparatively neglected published literature produced by western and other economic observers during the 1950s and '60s, and analyses of economic development strategies of individual trading partners. The results are richly rewarding, challenging both Russianists and historians of the Cold War to reassess their assumptions about the nature and limits of the Soviet Union's "powers of attraction and influence." "Red Globalization" has all the promise of a truly outstanding first book.

THE GRADUATE STUDENT ESSAY PRIZE

The Graduate Student Essay Prize is awarded for an outstanding essay by a graduate student in Slavic studies.

Winner: Zsolt Nagy

Title: "National Identities for Export: Hungarian, Czechoslovak, Romanian Nationality Rooms in Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning," University of North Carolina

Zsolt Nagy's essay situates the cultural politics of America émigré communities in an international setting. Those "nationality rooms" are familiar to anyone who has ever visited the University of Pittsburgh, and they seem at first glance to replicate the idealized, somewhat stereotyped ethnic self-imagining so common in US cities. Mr. Nagy demonstrates, however, that the governments of the countries involved played a leading role in designing these displays, and that they were intended to play a specific role in what we would today call public diplomacy. Bringing together cultural history, diplomatic history, and the history of US immigration in a well-researched and sophisticated package, Mr. Nagy's work represents well the transnational orientation that is currently transforming the discipline of history.

CLIR DISTINGUISHED LIBRARIAN AWARD

The Committee on Library and Information Resources of the Association for Slavic, East European, and Eurasian Studies (ASEEES CLIR) has conferred the first Distinguished Librarian Award to two of our field's leading lights: Miranda Remnek and Edward Kasinec. This new prize was established in 2010 to recognize outstanding leadership in the field of Slavic, East European and Eurasian librarianship and to show formal appreciation for a recipient's sustained impact in promoting and strengthening the profession. Both winners amply meet these criteria.

Miranda Remnek (MLS, MA, Ph.D.) has taken on a superhuman amount of work in promoting electronic applications and clarifying their relationship to research in Slavic and East European Studies. She has served as chair of AAASS Bibliography and Documentation Committee (B&D, the forerunner of CLIR), co-chaired the Digital Projects Working Group, and founded what is now known as the ASEEEES Subcommittee on Digital Projects. In the process, Miranda helped our organization to create the institutional foundation for the study of Slavic digital humanities in North America and beyond. As Head of Slavic and East European Collections at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, she hosted the Slavic Librarians' Workshop and created the first digital text workshop for Slavists, a major event that has attracted a broad range of scholars, librarians, and students. She has coordinated multi-university digitization projects in the United States, and shared her skills in workshops with our colleagues in Russia and Eastern Europe. Through her publications and her professional activity, Miranda has kindled interest in and a commitment to new forms of electronic communication and research. Her work on the development and use of digital texts in Slavic and East European scholarship and teaching have made an enduring impact in the field and will continue to shape the directions of Slavic digital scholarship and research in years to come.

Edward Kasinieć (MA, MPhil, MLS) has been nothing less than a force of nature in the field of Slavic and East European librarianship. His whirlwind career began at Harvard, where, as Reference Librarian/Archivist for the Harvard University Library and the Ukrainian Research Institute Library, he laid the foundations for that institution's remarkable Ukrainian holdings. As Librarian for Slavic Collections at the University of California-Berkeley, he spearheaded efforts to document the collections on campus and in the Bay Area and West Coast more broadly. He then moved on to The New York Public Library where, for a quarter century, as Curator of the Slavic and Baltic Division, he enhanced the collection and documented its rare and unique holdings. He has published more than two hundred refereed articles and books, on a wide range of topics, and has lectured on issues of bibliography and librarianship throughout the world. He has also organized numerous symposia, conferences, and exhibits, and currently serves on a number of editorial and advisory committees in area studies disciplines. Even in "retirement," his passion for Slavic and East European collections is unflagging. During the course of his long and distinguished career, Edward has kindled interest in many topics, and in many hearts, and he continues to inspire colleagues on both sides of the Atlantic.

The Goalkeeper The Nabokov Almanac

Edited by Yuri Leving
ISBN 978-1-936235-19-3; 250 pp. cloth $39.00

“The Goalkeeper” is a new scholarly almanac devoted to the art of Vladimir Nabokov. Himself an ardent goalkeeper, the author of Lolita viewed soccer as more than a game: “I was less the keeper of a soccer goal than the keeper of a secret” (Speak, Memory). The inaugural collection features contributions from two dozen leading Nabokov scholars worldwide, including academic articles (Neil Cornwell, Gerard de Vries, Samuel Schuman, and others); roundtable discussions (Brian Boyd, Jeff Edmunds, Priscilla Meyer, David Rampton, Leona Toker); interviews (Dmitri Nabokov, Alvin Toffler); archival materials; the Kyoto Nabokov conference report; and book reviews (Pekka Tammi, Zoran Kuzmanovich, Galya Diment). The Nabokov Almanac, edited by Yuri Leving, is affiliated with the Nabokov Online Journal,

A "Labyrinth of Linkages" in Tolstoy's Anna Karenina

By Gary L. Browning
ISBN 978-1-936235-18-6; 135 pp. cloth; $39.00

The renowned Russian writer Leo Tolstoy created a realistic masterpiece in Anna Karenina (1878). In the same work, moreover, he utilized allegory and symbol to an extent and at a level of sophistication unknown in his other works. In Browning's study, the author identifies and analyzes previously unnoticed or only briefly mentioned “linkages and keystones” found in two highly developed clusters of symbols, arising from Anna's momentous train ride and peasant nightmares, and of allegories, rooted in Vronsky's disastrous steeplechase. Within this labyrinth of symbol and allegory lies embedded much of the novel's most significant meaning.

A Alfa Fellowship Program

Alfa-Bank and CDS International are pleased to announce a call for applications for the Alfa Fellowship Program's 2011-12 Fellows. Now entering its seventh year, the Alfa Fellowship Program is a professional-level exchange designed to foster a new generation of American leaders and decision-makers with meaningful professional experience in Russia.

The Alfa Fellowship begins with language training in the U.S., followed by an intensive language course in Moscow. Throughout the summer and into the fall, Alfa Fellows attend a seminar program with key Russian government, public, and private sector officials to discuss current issues facing Russia. Fellows then work at leading organizations in Russia including private companies, media outlets, think tanks, NGOs, and government institutions.

Eligible candidates must have a graduate degree and professional experience in business, economics, journalism, law, government, or public policy. Russian language proficiency is preferred. The Fellowship includes monthly stipends, related travel costs, housing, and insurance.

OJSC Alfa-Bank is incorporated, focused and based in Russia, and is not affiliated with U.S.-based Alfa Insurance.

The Carl Beck Papers

in Russian and East European Studies

Named after the first director of the University Center for International Studies, The Carl Beck Papers is a scholarly paper series that publishes work of both new and more experienced scholars in many disciplines and areas of inquiry. Currently in their 29th year of publication, the Papers are distributed worldwide to institutions, libraries and individuals.

Submissions to the Papers are anonymously refereed in a double blind process and, if accepted, published as occasional papers. They are devoted to topics ranging across the entire field of Slavic, Russian, Soviet, post-Soviet and East European studies. Each Carl Beck Paper is published on an individual basis, which allows for rapid turnaround, individual advertising and wide and flexible distribution, including course adoptions at reduced prices. Submitted manuscripts must be 40-90 pages in length.

Forthcoming Titles:

THE DEBUT PRIZE

New Voices in Russian Literature:
 Scheduled: 11/19/2010 (8:00 a.m.-9:45 a.m.)
 Room: San Gabriel A. And visit us at booth 222

THE DEBUT PRIZE FOR YOUNG AUTHORS MARKED ITS 10TH ANNIVERSARY WITH THE LAUNCH OF ITS INTERNATIONAL
 PUBLISHING PROGRAM. THE FIRST ANTHOLOGY OF DEBUT WINNERS
 IN ENGLISH TRANSLATION HAS COME OUT THIS YEAR.

Squaring the Circle Winners of the Debut Prize for Fiction

Glas, 2010, 304 pp. (Translated from the Russian)

This anthology presents Russian prose by authors, who never lived in the Soviet Union. They are free of the Soviet legacy and do not resonate to the sort of art that attempts to turn everything Soviet into vintage chic. Unlike many older writers, they are not fighting the Soviet past. These authors live in a system of multiple uncertainties. Young people have no algorithms for building their lives and careers. There are no guarantees, but anything is possible. There is a fundamentally new way of thinking, a new way of seeing the world.

The Debut has shown that a person's life experience at any age is complete in and of itself. What a person knows about the world in his early 20s has been forgotten by the time he is 30. The Debut prompts them to commit to literature their unique experiences, what might be described as the shock of their first encounter with grown-up life.

Today an unusually gifted generation is entering Russian literature. Literature has not seen such an influx of energy in a long time. This new generation writing in Russian — both the individual writers and the phenomenon as a whole — is declaring itself with increasing confidence in all these literary areas. In Russia it is known as the Debut generation.

"From its inception the Debut has been the most popular and representative of prizes, not unlike a literary census of hidden talents." — New Times

"Russia has many literary prizes. The Debut is unique..." — Deutsche Welle
A quality literary project that has come to play a substantial part in Russia's cultural development." — Izvestia

"The Debut tries to gather the best we have in Russia." — Novaya gazeta

A SERIES OF BALKAN AND EAST-EUROPEAN STUDIES

BOOK n° 30 QUO VADIS EASTERN EUROPE? RELIGION, STATE AND SOCIETY AFTER COMMUNISM

Edited by Ines Angeli Murzaku

The book presents the newest research and thought on religion in Eastern Europe. The invited authors analyze the radically changed religious situation in the former communist countries and give some perspective on the future of religious co-existence in the area. The invited authors, among the best internationally recognized scholars in the field, present sophisticated analysis of common religiously motivated patterns that have historically faced and are facing the region.

BOOK n° 31 MIGRATIONS FROM AND TO SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE

Edited by Anna Krasteva, Anelia Kasabova and Diana Karabinova

Normalization is the word that challenges 24 scholars from 9 countries to sum up the diverse processes of migration from and to the Balkans at the beginning of the 21st century. The main trends are from forced migration to returns, focusing on the events of the countries of former Yugoslavia, from ethnic to economic logic when directing the attention to the minorities in Bulgaria and Romania, and from definitive migration to circular migration after the fall of the Iron Curtain — migration equals mobility. Take you on an exciting journey to known and unknown tracks of humanity!

BOOK n° 32 EUROPEAN MEMORY. A BLESSING OR A CURSE?

Edited by Leonidas Donskis and Ineta Dabašinskiene

To be or to forget? How do the politics of remembering and the politics of forgetting relate to modernity? Is European memory the way of painful dilemmas of modernity or it is just a burden?

The volume offers a strong Central European perspective on the politics of remembering and the politics of forgetting in the twentieth century, and on interpretation of ourselves and the world around us in the twenty-first century. The promise to remember everything accompanied by the ability to obliterate anything from the face of the earth, or the promise to describe history just like it was, coupled with a modern obsession to forge history or to whitewash and rewrite it, appear as the contradictions of modernity that may be pushed to the limit at any time. The book offers Italian, French, Hungarian, Slovenian, Lithuanian, and other European academic and cultural perspectives on this multidimensional phenomenon

MIREES

MASTER OF ARTS - INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH AND STUDIES ON EASTERN EUROPE

MIREES offers a two-year language skills programme which will take place partly in Italy and partly in the Partner Universities Vytautas Magnus University at Kaunas, Corvinus University of Budapest, and Saint Petersburg State University during the 6-month mobility period in the second year of the programme. The mobility is also possible at the University of Ljubljana as associate partner.

added value

Students with a BA background in Economics, Law, Political Science, International Relations, History, Agricultural studies, and Cultural studies at large will get from MIREES an in-depth knowledge of Post-socialist Countries in transition, new EU member States (and their role in Europe after the Enlargements of 2004 and 2007), and East-European Neighbour Countries. In this sense, MIREES is an innovative postgraduate programme, unique in Italy and Europe.

MIREES is a programme taught in English with a faculty of prominent scholars of international repute. Students will be encouraged to meet different course requirements, absorb differentiated perspectives from a plurality of points of view, be strongly motivated to acknowledge differences, to understand "otherness", to make insightful comparisons, and they will be expected to learn to deal concretely with their own future area of expertise. Students has assessed MIREES in 2009 among the first 10 programmes of the University of Bologna for the quality of teaching.

CALL FOR PAPERS:

Panel on Impact of Authoritarianism in Contemporary Russia at Association for Slavic, East European and Eurasian Studies (ASEEES) 43rd Annual Convention on November 17-20, 2011 in Washington, DC

Deadline for proposals: November 30, 2010

Institute of Modern Russia (IMR) is a newly founded non-profit organization seeking to advance democratic values and institutions, and engage with civil society on strengthening rule of law in Russia. IMR is calling for papers to be introduced and discussed at next year's 43d Annual Convention of ASEEEES.

The theme of the 2011 Convention is "Authorities".

IMR is accepting submissions on the subject of differential treatment of entrepreneurs and property rights by Russian authorities. Law and business schools' graduate students and faculty, other scholars and even law practitioners or entrepreneurs are invited to submit papers in the form of an article, analytical research project, etc. using publicly available information on cases such as the one undergoing in the Khamovnichesky District Court of the city of Moscow on the criminal charges brought by the General Prosecution Office of the Russian Federation against Mikhail Khodorkovsky and Platon Lebedev, former top managers of the Yukos Oil Company. Unfortunately, this case is not the only case where the state's power of law enforcement is used for the purposes other than the administration of justice. There are many others, such as the case of Hermitage Capital Fund and the tragic saga of its lawyer Sergey Magnitsky who died in pre-trial custody at a Moscow prison, or treatment of the principals of Souzplodimport, owners of Stolli vodka brand.

Authors can select any criminal law, criminal procedure, or interdisciplinary aspect(s) of one or more of the cases, provided that an appropriate amount of case materials such as indictments, court records, and verdicts are available for their academic research and analysis.

Please provide proposals for individual papers which shall include your full name, address, phone number, email address and institutional affiliation along with a brief abstract of your proposed paper. Feel free to suggest a discussant.

IMR is prepared to cover travel/accommodation expenses for the panelists and will consider providing a scholarship to the author of the best paper on the subject.

Please email your proposal to Pavel Ivlev at pavel@ivlev.net

INTERNATIONAL FELLOWSHIPS

FOR US SCHOLARS AND PROFESSIONALS

IREX is an international nonprofit organization providing leadership and innovative programs to improve the quality of education, strengthen independent media, and foster pluralistic civil society development.

Founded in 1968, IREX has an annual portfolio of $50 million and a staff of over 400 professionals worldwide. IREX and its partner IREX Europe deliver cross-cutting programs and consulting expertise in more than 50 countries through partnership, consultation, training, academic and professional exchange, and research.

IREX US and overseas grant programs have sponsored over 20,000 participants. As a result, students, policymakers, journalists and community groups have been able to contribute to international research and community-based development.

The International Fellowships for US Scholars and Professionals are funded by the United States Department of State Title VIII Program, John J. and Nancy Lee Roberts, and the IREX Scholar Support Fund.

Mellon Slavic Studies Initiative

Northwestern, Pittsburgh, and Wisconsin university presses have joined in a cooperative publishing initiative supported by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Designed to encourage the publication of first scholarly books, the initiative builds upon the three presses' strong history of publishing in Russian, East European, and Central Asian studies.

Northwestern seeks work on Slavic literature, art, and culture.

Pittsburgh is looking for projects in the social, political, environmental, urban, and cultural history of the former Soviet Union, Eastern Europe, and Central Asia.

Wisconsin is especially interested in cultural and intellectual history, literary studies, anthropology, and human rights.

Titles published under the initiative:

Erotic Nihilism in Late Imperial Russia:
The Case of Mikhail Artsybashev's *Sanin
Otto Boele

The Trace of Judaism: Dostoevsky, Babel, Mandelstam, Levinas
Val Vinokur

NCEEER

NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR EURASIAN
AND EAST EUROPEAN RESEARCH

Supporting Humanities and Social Science Research on Eurasia and East/Central Europe for over 30 Years

National Council for Eurasian and East European Research (NCEEER) was created in 1978 to develop and sustain long-term, high-quality programs for post-doctoral research on the social, political, economic, environmental, and historical development of Eurasia and Southeast Europe. NCEEER's support for research on the region has produced direct benefits for U.S. policymakers, the academic community, nonprofit organizations and American business. From broad, cross-cultural analyses to more focused studies of particular problems, NCEEER supports research projects that produce readable analysis, reliable information, and lively debate about current economic, political, and international issues.
